Response:

Majority faculty members are having a vast teaching experience at their disposal. It helps the college to understand the need of experiential learning, participative learning and problem-solving methodologies which are essential for Teaching-Learning Process. The experiential learning skills cover field visits, research work project preparation and industrial visits. To make teaching more effective, teachers have designed and revised teaching plans and evaluation methods. The efforts are taken by the teachers to design the topics for practical in such a way that it adds up to the practical knowledge of the subject for the students. Students have to prepare a field visit report. The students are properly guided by the concerned teachers. Though being a single faculty Commerce college, the curriculum is having practical subjects in each year. To make teaching and learning interesting and practical oriented, the mock interviews and GD sessions are included in the curriculum. As per the scope of the syllabus, the practicals are designed. The College has introduced various participative activities, which are conducted throughout the year including presentations, debates, quiz competitions, writing home assignments, conducting tutorials in class rooms, project writing etc. Project writing, preparing journals and appearing for the practical and oral examination are compulsory for every student as per the assigned schedule and are the old practices of the college to maintain the due record. The teachers use Innovative teaching practices such as PPT and ICT in the class rooms. Teachers through power point presentations prefer to current educational scenario through expert knowledge of the subject and make teaching and learning session proactive, programmatic, participative and interactive. Students are made to learn the latest techniques and technologies. Seminars and Workshops are organized by the college on current issues in Commerce and Management, Economics and ICT. The final year UG and PG students are also included in these programs which help to boost their practical knowledge, current trends in society and improve their participative skills. The students every year participate in Avishkar Competition and TeXpert Event. Students are motivated and provided assistance to participate in various cultural competitions organized in other colleges. All these activities help to boost the morale of the team spirit and enhance the social skills and soft skills among the students. PG student have to prepare research papers for each term and some students are selected for preparing research projects on different topics. With a view to inculcate the skill oriented knowledge among students, the college has designed 30 skill oriented courses and career oriented courses. The rich source of knowledge is the E-Learning Problem solving methodology includes research paper writing and project work which boost up the students' confidence level, improves problem solving capacity and gets the direct touch with the current topics of the society. Division :- B

Roll NO :- 212275

Semester :- IV

Academic year :- 2021-22

Date :- 7th April 2022.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE

Q.1 what do you mean by report and explain the of business report.

→ Meaning :- The simple meaning of report is that it is only a summary of information. This is a written communication to the needy person about an activity. A person who studies and compiles the required from required angle. A report may be informative or fact. A report is a statement of facts relating to an activity which is essential for evaluation of that activity, to take a decision related to it.

Definition :- A business report is the factual presentation of data or information directed to a particular reader or audience for a specific business purpose. It is a highly specialised type of communication, presents a collection of facts to be communicated to someone who will make use of them. It is flexible in subject content, organisation, form, and use.

A business report may record past transactions or accomplishments, release new information or ideas, give an account of conditions: past and present and conditions for determining future policies or recommend a course of actions to be followed. Data may consist of notes, quoted material, statistics, tables, charts, figures etc.

which is prepared in a prescribed form and is presented according to an established procedure to a prescribed authority. Formal reports can be statutory or non-statutory.

A) Statutory Reports :- A Report prepared and presented according to the form and procedure laid down by law called a statutory report. Report submitted at the meeting of shareholders, Directors report to the Annual General Meeting, Annual Return, Auditors report are statutory.

B) Non-statutory Reports :- Formal report which are required under any law but which are prepared to the management in framing policies or taking other important decisions are called non-statutory reports.

B) on the basis of the frequency of issue, a report be periodic or special:

① periodic or Routine :- Reports that are prepared and presented at regular, prescribed intervals in the routine of a business firm. They may be submitted annually, semi-annually, quarterly, monthly, fortnightly or even daily.

② special Reports are related to a single occasion or situation. A report on the desirability of opening a new branch or on the unrest among staff in a particular branch are special reports. special reports deal with non-recurrent problems.

④ on the basis of functions a report can be informative or interpretative.

Informative Reports :- Reports that merely presents facts pertinent to an issue or a situation or present production figures in a particular period, they are informative.

Interpretative Reports :- They go into the causes of production in that period, become analytical, interpretative or investigative. They analyse the facts, draw conclusions and make recommendations; they may be descriptive, analytical or interpretative or investigative reports.

On the basis of the nature of the subject dealt with the Report can be progress report, examination and recommendation reports, statistical reports, problem determining reports, technical reports, fact-finding and performance reports.

Progress Reports are meant to describe and assess work done during a particular period. They present an analysis of the work already done or work-in progress, other relevant facts, and details of the work yet to be completed.

② Examination Reports are specially earmarked to cover important aspects or events. They are prepared after thorough investigation, old files are studied, personal interviews are held, questionnaires are circulated etc. The facts are compiled and analysed and conclusions are drawn. An examination report may not contain recommendations but will contain findings or conclusions.

③ Recommendations Reports conclude with recommendations and such reports are argumentative and persuasive.

④ Statistical Reports are largely made up of financial mathematical charts, tabular columns of figures etc.

⑤ In problem-determining report, the causes underlying a problem or to ascertain whether or not the problem actually exists is determining. In problem-peterminating, we are about the causes underlying problem or to determine whether or not the problem actually exists.
